

Product Manager

An opportunity to join Five, a software company in the quickly growing & cutting-edge low-code / no-code industry.

Our low-code development platform supports rapid application development, one-step deployment, execution and management using high-level programming abstractions. Driven by businesses demand for ever more software, Gartner predicts that by 2024, low-code will account for more than 65% of enterprise application development.

We are now looking for a passionate, self-driven software professional to join our growing team as a Product Manager.

Working together with prospective customers, our marketing and technical teams, the product manager generates new ideas, analyses our product's positioning, and provides feedback to the R&D team for future product development. The product manager also supports business development and sales activities by giving product demonstrations, joining sales meetings and helps develop technical & customer collateral. The ideal candidate will be able to capture and document both technical and business requirements and act as our Product Evangelist.

Your skills & tasks will include:

- Confident & creative presenter with an ability to give effective and engaging product demonstrations to (prospective) customers together with our sales team
- Assisting with the design and development of our product to meet the needs of our customers
- Participate and contribute to the preparation and execution of the Company's go-to-market plans
- Strong understanding of software development processes and experience in coding
- Ability to think on your feet and quickly translate business requirements coming from domain experts into software solutions using our low-code platform
- Ability to professionally challenge and guide development teams using customer feedback
- Ability and willingness to adapt to shifting demands with an entrepreneurial spirit and willingness to take risks

Education & experience

- Bachelor's degree in computer science, information systems, or related technical field
- 2+ years of working experience in product management or in a similar role, working together with technical teams in setting the strategic direction and roadmaps
- Used to working or willingness to work in a fast-paced start-up environment
- Outgoing, confident and energetic in nature

- As our product is targeted towards software engineering previous practical experience in development would be highly regarded and especially in JavaScript.

What we offer

This is your chance to join an up-and-coming software start-up in one of the fastest growing segments of software development. Joining a small but growing team of highly motivated and experienced individuals, you will be able to play a leading role in the company's growth. If you thrive in a start-up environment and have a growth mindset, join us on this exciting journey!